Beginner's Composting Class April 29

(Woodland, CA) – Interested in learning more about how to hot compost? The Hanna and Herbert Bauer Memorial Community Garden, located in Woodland and sponsored by the Yolo County Health Services Department, will host a free beginner's composting class on Wednesday, April 29, 5:00 to 6:30 p.m.

Composting can be a great way to utilize organic waste from your yard to enhance the success of your garden. This class will provide the basic skills and techniques used in hot composting, an introduction to making compost tea, and instruction on how to use compost and compost tea to improve plant and soil nutrition.

This is a hands-on class, taught by the garden assistant and expert, David Linebarger, so please be willing to roll up your sleeves and get some experience in the process. Gloves and shoes that can get dirty are recommended.

The class is free to all but pre-registration is required. To register, contact Robin Rocksvold at (530) 666-8528 or robin.rocksvold@yolocounty.org.

In the event of heavy rain, the class will be cancelled.
