Summer and Fall Gardening Class June 17

(Woodland, CA) – Looking for an opportunity to learn skills and techniques that will optimize your summer and fall garden experience? The Hanna and Herbert Bauer Memorial Community Garden, located in Woodland and sponsored by the Yolo County Health Services Department, will be host to a free gardening class on Wednesday, June 17, 5:30 to 6:45 p.m.

This class will cover important topics such as irrigation techniques that maximize water usage, tips and tricks for harvesting produce, strategies for planning fall gardens, companion planting, and more. This class is a great opportunity for new gardeners to get important information that can contribute to the success of their fruit and vegetable gardens, and an opportunity for those with gardening experience to get questions answered and learn some new skills.

The class is free to all and is taught by the Garden Assistant and expert, David Linebarger. The class will take place outside in the community garden, so please bring sun protection and water. Pre-registration is required by June 16. To register, contact Robin Rocksvold at (530) 666-8528 or robin.rocksvold@yolocounty.org.
