New Yolo County 101 Series Offered October-February

(Woodland, CA) – Another series of Yolo County 101 seminars is being offered to provide residents insight into the form and function of Yolo County government, programs and services. This informative series of 12 seminars will begin October 15, 2008, with closing ceremonies in late February 2009. The first seminar will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the Erwin W. Meier Administration at 625 Court Street in Woodland. All county residents are welcome to participate.

During Yolo County 101 sessions, participants will learn more about their county representatives, what they do, and how the various government processes work. Subject areas that will be included in the program include: the Board of Supervisors, county administration, elections, land use, agriculture, public safety, the legal system, fiscal responsibilities, social service, water and flood issues, tribal relations, public health, emergency services, and special districts and boards.

“I’m pleased to see this informational series, that my office started two years ago, continue on as a county-sponsored program,” said Yolo County Supervisor Matt Rexroad. “Continuation of Yolo County 101 is a priority of the Board of Supervisors and it’s a great way for community members to learn about county government, the services and programs we offer and the issues we face.”

All sessions are free, but registration is required to reserve a seat in these sessions. To register visit www.yolocounty.org (Go to: Hot Topics > Yolo County 101) or call Yolo County Human Resources (530) 666-8055 to request a registration form be sent to you by mail. Registration forms are due by October 13, 2008.
